

Wageningen Academic
P u b l i s h e r s

Copyright and warrant information

Manuscript submission

Submission of a manuscript to Comparative Exercise Physiology implies that the work described has not been published before (except in the form of an abstract or as part of a published lecture, review or thesis); that it is not under consideration for publication elsewhere; that its publication has been approved by all co-authors, if any, as well as tacitly or explicitly by the responsible authorities at the institution where the work was carried out.

The author warrants that his/her contribution is original and that he/she has full power to make this grant. The author signs for and accepts responsibility for releasing this material on behalf of any and all co-authors. The author affirms that the article contains no unfounded or unlawful statements and does not violate the rights of others. If copyrighted works are included, the author bears responsibility to obtain written permission from the copyright owners and to appropriately credit the sources.

The use of general descriptive names, trade names, trademarks, etc. in the publication, even if not specifically identified, does not imply that these names are not protected by the relevant laws and regulations.

Open Access

Comparative Exercise Physiology is a Plan S compliant transformative journal. For authors and co-authors from countries, funding agencies or institutes implementing Plan S principles from 2021, open access publishing is mandatory. This effectively means that you can publish open access in this journal, receive funding for your Article Publishing Charges, and meet Plan S requirements. The journal appears on the cOAlition S website as approved and will be shown as such in the Journal Checker Tool. Authors from manuscripts without any Plan S requirements have an option to choose for open access during the transition period.

The open access publishing fee is a one-off fee of 1800 euro (≈USD 2000) under the Creative Commons Attribution CC BY license (click the link to see the specific licence conditions that will protect your work). Choosing this option also allows authors to post the publishers PDF-version of their article in an institutional or subject repository immediately upon publication. Please tick this option on your signed CTA if you want to publish your article as 'Open Access'.

Copyright Transfer Agreement

The Copyright Transfer Agreement/Open Access Publishing Licence Agreement must be signed and returned to the publisher of Comparative Exercise Physiology before the manuscript can be accepted for publication. Transfer of copyright to Wageningen Academic Publishers becomes effective if and when the article is accepted for publication. If the submitted manuscript is not accepted by the Journal, all rights will be returned to the authors of the work.

All articles published in the Comparative Exercise Physiology are protected by copyright, which covers the exclusive and unlimited rights to reproduce and distribute the article in any form of reproduction (printing, electronic media or any other form), as well as the translation rights for all languages and countries, for the full term (including extensions and renewals). For U.S. authors the copyright is transferred to the extent transferable. No material published in Comparative Exercise Physiology may be reproduced photographically or stored on microfilm, in electronic databases, video disks, etc., without first obtaining written permission from the publisher.

Author's rights

The author may send or transmit individual copies of the final published version of his/her manuscript in any format, including the PDF, to colleagues upon their specific request provided no fee is charged, and further-provided that there is no systematic distribution of the manuscript, e.g. posting on a listserve, website or automated delivery. However posting the article on a secure network, not accessible to the public, is permitted.

For other purposes, e.g. publication on his/her own website, the author must use the original author-created version of his/her article, i.e. the original submitted file prior to review. He/she may not use the publisher's PDF version, with the exception if his/her manuscript is published as 'Open Access'. Furthermore, the author may only post his/her version provided acknowledgement is given to the original source of publication and a link (DOI) is inserted to the published article on the Comparative Exercise Physiology website. The link must be accompanied by the following text: 'The original publication is available at <insert website link here>'.

The author(s) retain all proprietary rights, other than copyright, such as patent and trademark rights to any process or procedure described in the article. The author(s) have the right to photocopy the article for their own personal use.

An author has the right to use (part of) his/her article in subsequent publications of the authors own works provided that written permission is obtained from the publisher and that proper acknowledgement is made to the original source of publication and the publisher. Any other use or reproduction in a collective work requires a fee and permission from the publisher.

The right to grant or refuse permission to third parties to republish part of the article or translations thereof. However, the publisher except at the direction of the contributor(s) will not refuse such permission.

Warrant

While the information in Comparative Exercise Physiology is believed to be true and accurate at the date of its publication, neither the authors, the editors, nor the publisher can accept any legal responsibility for any errors or omissions that may be made. The publisher makes no warranty, express or implied, with respect to material contained herein.

Please fill in the form on the next page (digitally) and send the signed Copyright Transfer Agreement by mail to:

Wageningen Academic Publishers
Comparative Exercise Physiology
P.O. Box 220
6700 AE Wageningen
The Netherlands
CEP@WageningenAcademic.com

Wageningen Academic
P u b l i s h e r s

Copyright Transfer Agreement – Comparative Exercise Physiology

The copyright to:

Manuscript title:

Manuscript ID:

Authors:

is hereby transferred to Wageningen Academic Publishers, publisher of Comparative Exercise Physiology (respective to owner if other than Wageningen Academic Publishers and for U.S. government employees: to the extent transferable) effective if and when the article is accepted for publication. If the submitted manuscript is not accepted by Comparative Exercise Physiology, all rights will be returned to the author(s) of the work.

The author warrants that his/her contribution to Comparative Exercise Physiology is original and has not been published before (except in the form of an abstract or as part of a published lecture, review or thesis); that it is not under consideration for publication elsewhere; and that its publication has been approved by all co-authors, if any, as well as tacitly or explicitly by the responsible authorities at the institution where the work was carried out. The author affirms that the article contains no unfounded or unlawful statements and does not violate the rights of others. If copyrighted works are included, the author bears responsibility to obtain written permission from the copyright owners and to appropriately credit the sources.

The copyright to this article is transferred to Wageningen Academic Publishers. The author warrants that he/she has full power to make this grant. The author(s) retain all proprietary rights, other than copyright, such as patent and trademark rights. The author signs for and accepts responsibility for releasing this material on behalf of any and all co-authors. The copyright transfer covers the exclusive and unlimited rights to reproduce and distribute the article in any form of reproduction (reprints, photographic reproductions, printing, electronic media (offline, online) or any other form), as well as the translation rights for all languages and countries, for the full term (including extensions and renewals). No material published in Comparative Exercise Physiology may be reproduced without first obtaining written permission from the publisher.

The author may send or transmit individual copies of the final published version of their manuscript in any format, including the publisher's PDF version, to colleagues upon their specific request provided no fee is charged, and further-provided that there is no systematic distribution of the manuscript, e.g. posting on a listserve, website or automated delivery. However posting the article on a secure network, not accessible to the public, is permitted. For other purposes, e.g. publication on his/her own website, the author must use an author-created version of his/her article, i.e. the original submitted file prior to review. He/she may not use the publisher's PDF version, with the exception if their manuscript is published under 'Your Choice for Open Access' (Creative Commons Attribution CC BY license). Furthermore, the author may only post his/her version provided acknowledgement is given to the original source of publication and a link (DOI) is inserted to the published article on the Comparative Exercise Physiology website. The link must be accompanied by the following text: 'The original publication is available at <insert website link here>'.

- ☐ I choose to publish my article under 'Your Choice for Open Access' (Creative Commons Attribution CC BY Licence) and pay the one-off fee of 1800 Euro (ex. VAT) to the publisher.
- ☐ I would like to order (number of copies, minimum 100) reprints of the article at the rate of 5 Euro (ex. VAT) per copy.

Name

Date

(Corresponding) author's signature: